

As from the start of this month, Jozef Kaban is the new head of Rolls-Royce design, while Domagoj Dukec takes over BMW design. "The realignment of BMW Group Design is a signal of our future orientation. The new structure will ensure more efficiency, speed and agility in our design process. The new responsibilities will set the design direction for the individual brands and align it to future demands," says Adrian van Hooydonk, head of BMW Group Design.

Jozef Kaban, previously head of the BMW core brand design, now takes charge of Rolls-Royce brand design.

Domagoj Dukec, previously head of BMW i and BMW M design, has taken up responsibility for the entire BMW brand.